NEW LIFE SHOWN AT BARBOURVILLE

Everything Booming and Much Building in Progress

[The Evening Post]

The construction work on the Cumberland & Manchester railroad is going forward. The yards at Barbourville are being graded, ties and trestle timber are being put on the grade. Many coal and timber men looking for locations in the rich coal and timber fields of Clay and Leslie counties, which are tapped by this new road, are passing through the city.

The work of constructing pikes to all parts of the county and the Dixie Highway is under way.

The city is constructing a large modern brick and concrete school building and extending its macadam streets. Captain Golden has just received plans from his architect for a large modern hotel and garage, which he expects to construct here.

West Brothers, of Louisville, have bought fifteen acres of subdivision property near where the new railroad has located its machine shops and roundhouse, and will on Saturday, August 28, conduct a sale of this property. Many modern residences are under construction. The brick factory, hardwood factory and planing mill are running full time. New business firms are locating here and everything looks like new life on every hand.

A full line of Birth Stone rings now on display at D. C. Payne's Jewelry store. Our increased sales have proven that our customers certainly appreciate good goods at nominal prices, and the way our reconstructed stone rings and cameos have sold during the past year proves the correctness of our judgement as to the style of rings which are going to sell best.

During the coming year men's rings especially are going to be in big demand, these will be set with "Hellers" reconstructed rubies, genuine amethysts, genuine topaz, and in the ladies rings, Pink shell cameos and Coral cameos will be worn a great deal. All these are shown in the birth stone rings at our store. Don't fail to see them.

Some people can do most anything that they wish and there is nothing done or said, and that some others who may by chance do the same thing and all are ready to condemn them for it.

ASSERTS SHE WAS AFRAID OF SHADOW

Miss Underhill Says Tanlac Has Relieved Her Nervousness.

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 27, 1915. "I was so nervous I actually was afraid of my shadow," Miss Christin Underhill, assistant manager of the soda fountain at the Herman Straus Company's store, this city, told friends recently when relating her experience with Tanlac, the premier preparation.

"I had all sorts of hallucinations and worried about all kinds of trifles," Miss Underhill continued. "I knew that I was suffering from excessive nervousness and was in a terribly run-down condition. I tried many medicines without being benefited. I finally decided to try Tanlac."

"To say that I was benefited would be expressing myself in too mild a manner. I was astonished at the result. After taking only a few doses I noticed a marked improvement. My entire nervous system seemed to have undergone a wonderful change. My sleep became restful and refreshing and my appetite reappeared."

"Really," she laughingly added, "I ate so ravenously that I was afraid my beard bill would be raised."

Tanlac, the premier preparation, is now on sale in Barbourville, at The Herndon Drug Co's Drug store.

Swain Shows Coming.

W. I. Swain Shows will be the special attraction at night during Fair week.

The famous W. I. Swain Show Company is scheduled to appear at Barbourville for one week, commencing Monday August 30, and give night performances of a widely diversified character throughout the week. This popular organization is primarily the outcome of the insurrection in the gigantic theatrical trust and represents the faction that took independent means to present big city attractions at nominal prices of admission in the smaller towns, there the trust arbitrary methods have debared even periodical visits by meritorious attractions.

The W. I. Swain Show Company is known from coast to coast as the largest and best equipped tented organization of its kind in America. Its colossal "Kant Leak" pavilion has a seating capacity of upwards of two thousand people and presents all metropolitan successes in a manner characteristic of big city productions.

This season's offerings by the Swain Show Company includes sensational melodrama, historical and society plays, musical, comedy, and farcical success. Among this year's biggest hits might be mentioned, "Belle of the Mountain Trail," the last word in heroic romance; and a dramatization of Marie Corell's most popular novel, "THELMA," which is now creating in its dramatized form a veritable furor in the cultured centers of fashion throughout the country; in fact, tens of thousand women patrons of the W. I. Swain Show Company have asked for its production.

Along Educational Line

Mr. Editor—As no one else seems inclined to take advantage of the columns you so graciously offered teachers, I will attempt "to brake the ice."

I think our work in the schools of the country should be more practical. I believe education in this country has been along wrong lines, instead of teaching our young men and young women a lot of Scholastic lore, we should teach them such things as they can make useful in life, and thus increase their creative power for we must confess as a people or as a nation that our consuming power is much greater than our creating power.

We should teach such things as will enable our pupils to earn an honest living for themselves and those dependent upon them at least so they will be able to grapple with the problems of life and above all teach them to appreciate honest labor, for we must earn what we get or otherwise we will not appreciate what we have or know how to use it wisely. We should inculcate such lessons into the mind and life of our pupils as will enable them to originate and produce useful service, we as citizens in every walk should do more to exalt honest labor. This is our duty in the homes, the churches and especially in the schools, it is the duty of schools to exalt honest service rather than encourage our pupils to seek for easy jobs in life where the reward is great and the service small. I believe that it was Horace Greely that said:

"If any man fancies that there is some easy way of gaining a dollar than by squarely earning it he has lost the clew to his way through this mortal labyrinth and henceforth must wander as chance may dictate. Just look around us and see who are the street loafers and country idlers many of them are pupils of our schools waiting to get a good job with a big salary and little service probably with a diploma and can't do any thing that is very practical in life.

The fading flowers of pleasures, Spring spontaneous from the soil; But the real harvest treasures, Yields alone to patient toil.

TO VOTERS OF 34th JUDICIAL DISTRICT

Hon. J. B. Snyder Thanks
Voters For Support

Williamsburg, Ky, Aug 14, 1915. To the voters of 34th Judicial District.

I take this method of thanking the voters of the 34th Judicial District, who so loyally stood by me and gave me their support in the recent primary at which time I received the Republican Nomination of the office of Commonwealth's Attorney of this District by a magnificent majority. Seven years and one half experience as the incumbent of this important office has taught me that one of experience can render more efficient service to the people by reason of such experience. And I now say to the people of this District as a whole that I shall attend studiously to the duties of this office and see that the people's rights are properly protected and crime properly prosecuted in the courts of this district.

The people have shown by their votes that they will stand by and support an officer who is fearless in discharge of his duties as I have been, and I beg to say that the people will be supported by me in my actions and conduct as an official by rigid enforcement of the criminal laws in this district.

Again thanking you, I am,

Yours very truly,

J. B. Snyder.

PRESERVE FOREST LANDS

Forest Conservation Concerns Both
City and Farm.

Many dwellers in towns and cities feel great interest in forestry and would be glad to give active aid to the cause. Some are doing so by the improvement of forest lands which they own, but there are greater numbers who are not able to do this but who greatly desire to enjoy the forests and to help along any movement tending to their improvement. The preservation of forests for natural scenery, to check the winds and hold back the waters; to stop erosion of valuable farm lands; to harbor birds and animals; to produce materials for building and manufacturing are matters which concern city people as well as those who dwell on farms.

The obligation to protect the forests rests upon all and the opportunity to enjoy them should be enjoyed by all. Cities should own forest parks in which the design should be to get away from the conventional and costly style of landscape gardening now common in city parks.

Such parks, if made as natural as possible, would cost far less to establish and maintain than other parks and would serve many purposes. They would help to arouse an interest in forestry and to show its practicability. They would afford means of recreation and study, supplementing the courses in school. If the agricultural experiment stations in the different states were enabled to co-operate in the establishment and maintenance of such forest parks, the arrangement would no doubt be mutually helpful, since the work would be started along forestry rather than ornamental lines and its permanency would be reasonably sure.

Forest conservation to many people means the saving of mature trees and nothing more. Real conservation takes into account all that is of value, also that which has a potential value. Correct ideas, regarding values of forest products, need an entire reconstruction, as upon a proper conception of what constitutes the most essential part of a forest rests the fundamental doctrine of conservation. To save that which is worth but little and to waste that which is full of possibilities shows wrong ideas regarding values, but examples of this kind are very common. Almost every one appreciates the worth of a large oak, walnut or pine tree, but to most people a seedling of the same species is nothing but a weed. It seems hard for any one, who has not studied the rate of growth of trees, to realize that a mature tree makes but little growth and is worth saving only as long as it remains sound, while a thrifty young tree is growing into value at a rapid rate. But little that is really worth while will be done in the care of our timber trees until we come to realize that forest conservation means the saving of trees of all ages and sizes. However, it is gratifying to note that the interest in forestry is growing constantly and that the number of trees planted each year is increasing.

AT THE PEEP O'DAY

Robinson's Famous Show
Will Arrive

Older people are inclined to laugh at the small boy who arises at 4 a. m. on circus day and hies to the railroad yards to see the show unload. But if they only knew it little Johnnie has the best of the game. He is able to see many things that the older ones miss, things that are really interesting, even thrilling.

Few people realize the wonderful system that enables a big organization like Robinson's Famous Shows to be moved from one city to another, get ready and give two performances in one day, and get out of town without friction or accident, leaving a tent stake of the endless paraphernalia as a reminder of their visit.

It is marvelous to watch the skilful unloading of the enormous wagons, dens and tableaux without a hitch or moment's delay; to see the big handsome horses take their places like clockwork, to see the elephants push wagons in place, lift immense center poles and perform other duties where their measureless strength comes into play.

Older people might follow Little Johnnie's example with profit. Just try it once, on the morning of September 9th when Robinson's Famous Shows will arrive by the L. & N. railroad, and give two performances in this city, at 2:00 and 8:00 p. m.

SINGLETON

On Tuesday evening August 24th at Five o'clock, the spark of life left the body of James C. Singleton, and his spirit sped to the realms beyond.

Jim as he was commonly called was the son of the late R. C. and Mariah Singleton, both of whom died many years ago leaving Jim as their only son and heir, and we believe he is the last of that family. He was a man that had many friends, and in that was liked by all who knew him, he was a soldier in the Spanish American war, and died at the old soldiers home in Johnson City, Tenn. where he has been for the past two or three years. His remains were brought here where he had long ago prepared a burying place for himself, father and mother in the city cemetery, where he was buried beside his father and mother.

He was a member of the Christian church, and had been a member for many years, he was for many years a member of the many Brass Bands in this city, the last being The Red Mens Band and was always found at his post when there was any kind of an engagement to fill.

There is none so rich that he cannot die, and none so poor that he cannot find a grave.

Hell is too good for some people who live in this town, they will talk about their neighbors, and say that they are good citizens, still they will build hog pens on the side of a street that would out-stink carrion in the summer time.
